

AACP MIMS Consultant Pharmacist Award 2020

The aim of this annual award is to recognise the outstanding contribution by an accredited pharmacist to the practice of consultant pharmacy.

Since the introduction of specialised remuneration services into Australian Pharmacy Practice with medication reviews in nursing homes in 1997 and extending to those residing in the community in 2001, the practice of consultant pharmacy has grown. This award aims to recognise those pharmacists who have adopted and implemented these services to provide an outstanding service to patients in their community, whether in their homes or in aged care facilities

All AACP accredited pharmacists are encouraged to reflect on the work of their friends and colleagues working as consultant pharmacists and to consider nominating them for this prestigious award.

Do you know an 'unsung hero' working in this area of pharmacy practice? There are many accredited pharmacists currently practicing in rural and remote locations who achieve exceptional success in their day to day activities. Likewise, many city-dwellers have been the welcome recipients of home medicines reviews which have made a real difference to the way they manage their medicines.

If you know a deserving AACP-accredited pharmacist, forward your nomination. There are many accredited pharmacists whose dedicated work contributes to improved health outcomes for their patients and fosters outstanding collaboration and communication with all health professionals

Many accredited pharmacists are deserving of this award and the recognition that it brings. It provides them with the opportunity to travel to attend a conference or seminar of their choice which has relevance to their practice.
